Shopping Cart High-fi Prototype

The high-fi prototype for shopping cart fully reflects the low-fi prototype sketch. In order to create a sense of information hierarchy, I used different text color as well as font weight. For the description information of the pillow, property titles such as color and material are bolder. But in the customized information, the actual number of pricing and quantity of items are bolder in order to remind the users and to avoid potential mistakes. The checkout button is in a darker color because it serves as an exit to the next page. Also it needs to be in a similar style as the other buttons of the website. Once an item is added to the cart, the cart icon in the header will have a red bubble indicating the actual number of items in cart. It will be memorized by the website and will be shown on other pages.
